City, township offices closed for Holidays

Romulus City Hall and Huron Township Hall will be closed on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 24-25, for the Thanksgiving Holiday, officials said today.

City business in Romulus will resume at 9 a.m. on Monday, Nov. 28. City officials said that trash usually picked up on Thursday will be collected the following day.

Township officials also will return to work on Monday.

Associated Newspapers, which publishes The Belleville Enterprise and The Romulus Roman, will also be closed on Thursday in order for employees to enjoy Thanksgiving with their families.

The ANP offices will re-open at 8:30 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 25.

Do you want to rollerskate?

For a fee of $1, Romulus residents may catch a bus and join the rollerskating fun at the Westland-based Skateland.

The bus will be available in Romulus and will convey passengers to the skating rink, then later return them. There is a small charge to rent skates.

For further information, please contact the recreation department offices at 941-0666, extension 254.

Rec. seeking young wrestlers

Ray Godzina will be instructing a youth wrestling program, sponsored by the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department. The program will begin on Nov. 30 and will be held Wednesday and Friday evenings at Romulus North Junior High School.

Young wrestlers, ages 5 through 17, are invited to attend. There is a $10 registration fee. Classes will meet at 7 until 9 p.m.

Special offer

The Romulus Senior High School of Cosmetology invites residents to take advantage of a special. For the months of November and December, a free manicure or facial with any hair care services rendered is offered. Also, permanent waves, hair cuts, hair coloring, scalp treatments and permanent relaxers are available.

'Tis the season

Kitty Miller, Chairperson of the annual Care/Share project of the GFWC Belleville Junior Study Club, together with sons Jeffery and John, help trim "The Giving Tree." The tree is decorated with valuable, hand-crafted ornaments donated by members of the Study Club. Attached to each ornament is the name of a needy child from the area. There are 232 ornaments on the tree, and December 9 is the last day to trade a gift for an ornament. The tree is located in the lobby of the National Bank of Detroit Branch in Belleville on Main Street. For information, call Cathy Horste at 699-7968.

New Boston youth killed

Prosecutor won't charge driver of fatal accident

By HOWARD SCOTT
ANP Staff Writer

The driver of a vehicle involved in a fatal accident two weeks ago in Sumpter Township will be given a citation for driving under the influence of alcohol, Sumpter Township Police said yesterday.

The youth involved, age 17, was behind the wheel of a vehicle that overturned in a ditch at Arkona and Haggerty in the early morning hours of November 4. The crash resulted in the death of John Peay, a 15-year-old from New Boston.

At the time of the crash, it was determined that the driver and his five passengers had consumed three fifth-sized bottles of vodka prior to the mishap. Police sought a warrant against the driver for negligent homicide, but it was turned down on Monday.

"We presented the case to the prosecutor, but he denied the warrant," said Sumpter Police Corporal Wanda Elden. "Therefore, the driver will be issued the citation for driving under the influence, and the case is closed."

Police also have had little luck finding out how the young people got the alcohol in the first place.

"We had conflicting statements from the passengers in the car," said Elden. "At first, they mentioned one local market as the place where the liquor was bought. When we checked it out, we found that the store was not open that early in the morning, and that they did not carry the brand of liquor that was found," police said.

Are teachers crying over spilled milk?

For most, these are hard times. There's no denying it... the good times for many have become a dream.

And, for Romulus teachers, who were forced to digest a 22 percent across-the-board salary rollback last January, times are even worse.

But one person, Pauline W. Hargis, wants teachers "to not cry over spilled milk."

In a letter addressed to the Board of Education, Mrs. Hargis points out that she is a school bus driver for the school district and a Romulus resident since 1962. She also has put five children through the Romulus School system.

"When I became a (bus) driver, I made a bargain with my children," Mrs. Hargis writes, "you don't embarrass me and I won't embarrass you."

Changes coming Mayor ponders options

Her first week in office, Romulus' new mayor has done "lots of listening, exploring of possibilities and examining of programs" in her 12 to 14 hour days on the job.

She's currently making decisions on which department heads will stay — or go — and honing up on the intricacies of the Wick Sewer Project.

But what really has Beverly McAnally nervous is anticipating the first wedding ceremony she will, as mayor, perform.

"It's on December 3," she said at a Tuesday morning telephone interview. "I'm glad I don't have to guarantee results. I haven't even had time to look over wedding ceremonies."

Before the wedding date, Mayor McAnally must review the status of the 10 Romulus department heads. (Departments include public works, ordinances, building, recreation, and community planning.)

Under city charter requirements, the mayor must reappoint or automatically terminate the department heads' positions by December 1.

"I'm in the process of making those decisions right now," McAnally said.

"I don't want to be affected by the political campaign in making my decision," she emphasized. "The city charter wisely allowed two or three weeks (after the elections) for the appointments."

But the new mayor acknowledged that "compatibility" was the single most important criteria for appointing the heads.

She also said that at Tuesday night's council meeting she would recommend a new city attorney and engineer. The law firm she named is Berry, Hopson, Francis, Mack, and Siefman of Detroit. Orchard, Hiltz, and McCliment, Inc. of Livonia is the engineering firm she'll recommend.

"I don't want to be affected by the political campaign in making my decision," Mayor McAnally

Getting the "players in place" needs to be accomplished, before she can go ahead with issues such as the Wick Sewer Project. "I'm going to be pursuing that pretty vigorously," she said. "That sewer's not doing anyone any good lying on the ground."

Making the city commissions more viable is another goal in her first year in office, she said. "We're paying them," she said, "and I want to see that we exercise them to do what they should be doing."

McAnally hopes to "enhance effectiveness" of the police department by working closely with the fire, police, and safety commission.

"That commission has proposed by-laws but they haven't been adopted by city council," she said. "I want to work with them on that. We need to take neighborhood politics out of the realm of the police."

"I don't want to elaborate on this until I've discussed it with the commission," she added.

Working closely with the recreation commission will also be a priority. "For example, I'd like to get some activities going for young adults," she said. "There's next to nothing now if you don't play softball."

But the next month or two will consist in large part of "information dissemination. You have to know and understand before you can implement," she said.

"I only wish there were 52 hour days. Even 48 would help," added the mayor who takes her work home with her those nights she doesn't have meetings.

And, though she sees her next few weeks as being as hectic as her first, Romulus' first woman mayor says she's enjoying the job.

"It's a good feeling to be here," she said. "I intend to do what I promised to do, benefit the people who live here."

"Now, if I can only make time to plan for that wedding..."

Happy Thanksgiving

From The Romulus Roman Staff

She also notes that she has served as a union officer most of the years she has been employed by the School district. "I know my fellow employees quite well which makes me feel that I can speak for most of them."

"We certainly understand the need to run for more money to run our schools properly," Mrs. Hargis continues. "We are the ones who have to work extra hard to clean up the mess from leaky roofs."

"We are the ones who say an extra prayer before we try to start our beat out buses. We also are the suppliers of the students and pay the taxes."

We are certainly aware that times are bad as we have not had a raise for over three years and a lot of our families have been out of work.

"And we are getting tired of listening to our children report that, 'What I learned in school today was how bad it is for our teachers.'"

Mrs. Hargis concludes by

"I know my fellow employees quite well which makes me feel that I can speak for most of them."

Pauline Hargis

urging teachers to do the job they were hired to do.

"Can't we all pull together to make the best of a bad situation, not to cry over spilled milk and to have hope for the future and that better days are coming?"

"We all know that the whole country is in tough shape. Let's not let this generation slip through without a proper education because we have been selfishly concentrating on our personal problems," Mrs. Hargis urges.

Romulus residents had an opportunity to raise funds for the schools on Nov. 8 when they were asked to approve millage proposals for 7.5 mills that was earmarked for school operations and repairs. The voters rejected both millage requests.

In the meantime, the Romulus Education Association has asked the courts to return the 22 percent rollback. The REA is arguing that their group and the Romulus School Board has signed contracts and the rollback violated that contract.

The two parties are awaiting a court decision on that question.

Carrier of the Week Tony Apone

When Tony Apone delivers the Westland Eagle in his neighborhood each Thursday, it's more like a visit with old friends than a job.

Tony has had his route, comprising 100 customers for more than five years and notes that most of his customers are also close friends.

He describes the key to his success as courtesy — "be nice to the customer, smile and be friendly, but most of all, get the job done," the Carrier of the Week advises.

Tony is presently saving money from his route for college where he hopes to major in engineering or aviation. His favorite subjects at John Glenn High School where he is a tenth grade student are math and drafting.

The son of Anthony and Elizabeth Apone of South Dowling in Westland, Tony's hobbies also include music. He plays both the trombone and piano and is involved in the marching band, the orchestra and the jazz band at school. He also participated in basketball and baseball, two of his favorite sports, although track is his real love and he will be participating in the triathlon in Detroit next summer.

Tony credits his family with helping him a great deal in maintaining the level of service which earned him the Carrier of the Week title.

"Many times my mom and dad and my sister have had to deliver the papers for me when I was sick or had surgery ... I really appreciate their help," Tony said.

Carriers of the Week are chosen by the Associated Newspapers Circulation Department.

Block Grant program

Funds to provide area jobs

A code enforcement officer for Belleville, a clean-up of storm drainage ditches in Sumpter Township, and a long-term job program in Van Buren Township are some of the benefits from the 1983-84 Housing and Urban Development block grant program in Wayne County.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners recently approved some $7 million to be divided among 32 Wayne County communities. For the first time since the program's inception in 1975, approximately $2 million was provided for temporary, federally-funded jobs for community residents.

While most of the money was channeled to the communities in August, final approval was needed to get many of the HUD construction projects off the ground, say block grant administrators.

Sumpter Township's $236,774 means the township can proceed with a badly needed storm drainage clean-up project, according to Township Supervisor Jim Reeves.

"Some of those storm drains haven't been cleaned in about 50 years," said Reeves. "This means some welcome relief for us."

township, the approximately 15 drainage ditches handle rain runoff in severe storms, Reeves noted.

"When storms come, these drains are all closed up," Reeves said. "That's one reason we have a big problem with flooding."

In addition to the storm drain program, the township used $66,774 in jobs bills money for community facilities work, including re novation of the old township hall. Workers (who must be Sumpter residents unemployed for at least 15 weeks) are constructing offices in the hall for Sumpter police and the senior citizens coordinator.

The township also received an $80,000 for housing rehabilitation.

Belleville will use part of its $132,537 to hire a temporary code enforcement officer, said Belleville City Manager Frank Pascarella.

"There's been an upsurge of complaints about upholding city ordinances," Pascarella said. "This should help us crack down on the violations."

The code enforcement officer will handle problems ranging from uncollected rubbish to noisy neighborhood dogs, Pascarella said. "There's no one major issue he or she will work on. Just a lot of little things," the city manager said.

The individual would be paid $5.50 an hour for approximately eight months work, Pascarella said.

The remainder of the grant money will be used for street work, sewer improvements, home rehabilitation work, and administration of the grant.

Belleville used $57,500 of the HUD funding to hire two individuals for park improvement work, as well as pay for the cost of equipment.

Van Buren Township received $214,423 of the HUD funding, of which approximately $89,000 is earmarked to create a few permanent positions at the Coca Cola plant which opened last summer in the township.

"It's a different approach than most of the communities are using," said Township Treasurer Donna Hall. "Instead of hiring a lot of temporary workers for a short term project, we helped put three persons on the Coca Cola payroll permanently."

The positions were for full-time employment in different capacities, Hall said. Township money covered the cost of in-house training, equipment, preparation, and transportation.

Of the township's remaining funds, $45,000 went to pave old Tyler Road. Another $50,000 was used to purchase a mini-pumper for the fire department, and the remaining funds for storm drain improvements and administrative purposes.

All communities participating in the block grant program receive a base amount determined by population. Communities with a population of under 10,000 receive $80,000, said Terry Jarvis, community development coordinator for Wayne County.

Additional funds are obtained by competitive bidding for grant money, Jarvis added.

Funding levels have remained consistent since 1978, Jarvis noted.

"The federal jobs funding was a one-shot deal," he added. "We don't expect to have that back next year."

Explorer among first in area

Search is on to find LaSalle statue

By EVE SILBERMAN
ANP Staff Writer

Wanted: (new or used) a statue of Robert LaSalle, the famous 17th century explorer who adventured through Belleville in the spring of 1680. To be erected at Liberty Bell Park (between Denton and Belleville Road) where the history making traveler can look down at current visitors to the city.

For more information, contact Park Gregory, Belleville's Commissioner of Parks.

The above ad hasn't yet appeared in The Belleville Enterprise or the Romulus Roman but then the Great Statue Search is just beginning.

"I'm hoping that someone around here will find something," said Gregory.

"If we can't get a full statue, a bust will do. We're not fussy," Gregory added.

The statue would be the city's first. "LaSalle deserves it," Gregory said. "He's probably the most famous visitor to come our way."

"There may have been well-known visitors in modern times, politicians and such, but no one to compare with him," Gregory emphasized. "You wouldn't, for example, put up a statue of Hubert Humphrey."

Erecting a statue of LaSalle has long been a hope of the park commissioner. But he waited to mount his campaign because the city council only recently declared the tiny section of land (at Liberty and Belleville, and Denton and Belleville) to be officially designated Liberty Bell Park.

La Salle's journey through Belleville was part of an adventure filled agenda back in 1680. He was returning to Fort Frontenac in Quebec after establishing a fort at the mouth of the St. Joseph River on Lake Michigan.

"He kept a log on his travels," Gregory said. "And he wrote close to the city as LaSalle ever got."

In 1682, the French adventurer claimed all the land drained by the Mississippi for King Louis IV of France and named it Louisiana. In a thoughtful move more than 125 years later, the United States doubled its size

'He (LaSalle) is probably the most famous visitor to come this way . . .'

Park Gregory
Commissioner of Parks

that he picked up the Huron River in Ann Arbor and followed it through Lake Erie to Quebec."

"He went right through Belleville Lake. The spot where his statue would be is probably as through the "Louisiana Purchase."

Today, LaSalle stands out as one of the "glamour explorers," according to Gregory. "Although he's as famous for his death as his discoveries," Gregory added, explaining that the explorer was murdered by his own men in 1687 while searching for the mouth of the Mississippi.

"La Salle was setting out for Canada for supplies, but his men were tired of starving to death. They set upon him and killed him."

Gregory's search for a statue may be much easier than any of the explorer's own quests. "The interesting thing is that there's no description of La Salle, or any portrait painted of him. So what we're looking for is a statue of any male before 1700."

Gregory had hoped, he said with regret, to obtain a statue of La Salle that used to be on display at the old Detroit City Hall, torn down in the 1950s.

"For years, that statue was stored at the basement of the Detroit Historical Museum," Gregory said. "Then I went and checked for it last spring. But it is now at Wayne State."

The park commission hasn't yet started fund raising efforts. "We're sending out feelers now, seeing what we can come up with," Gregory said. "We're just at the start of the search."

Anyone wanting to help the Belleville Park Commission in its search for a suitable statue or bust is asked to contact Gregory or any of the other six members of the commission: James Graham, Jonette Niemann, Mary Prais, Glenn Silvanis, Michael Schwartz, and Avis White.

Messages may be left at the Belleville City Hall at 697-9323.

Landfills

Where do we go from here?

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

Landfills . . . Taxes . . . Pollution . . .

Everyone has an opinion on them. No one wants landfills literally in their backyards for fear of toxic waste dumping. No one wants higher taxes. And everyone wants clean air and pure water.

For residents in the five communities of the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority they are issues that must be faced in the very near future.

The authority has been in existence for almost 30 years, disposing of the garbage of its members — Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Dearborn Heights. Until last December the refuse was disposed of by incineration, with the ash dumped in an old silica sand quarry in Huron Township.

The authority was formed in the 1950s, when Western Wayne County was in the midst of tremendous growth. A fear that landfills would be filled up within 10 to 15 years and a trend in the state to an alternative lead the cities through a bond issue to construct an incineration plant at Avondale and Inkster roads in Dearborn Heights. The facility had two furnaces and cost $3.1 million. Less than nine years later the authority bonded for another $3 million to add a third furnace. Business was booming, but there were problems.

While the facility shifted out metals for recycling, generating $100,000 in additional revenue, and reduced thousands of tons of garbage to ash, the billowing steam clouds that came from the three smoke stacks contained too much dust.

Under orders from the federal government to reduce the dust content of the steam and facing a Dec. 31, 1982 deadline to comply with the Clean Air Act, the authority shut down the furnaces and literally became a refuse transfer site, accepting garbage from its member communities, transferring it to larger trucks and shipping it to the Woodland Meadows landfill in Canton Township.

The authority would like to get back into the business of burning refuse, but that will take another bond issue of $6 million to add electrostatic precipitators to the furnaces to filter out the pollutants.

Wallace Arrowsmith, Wayne's representative to the authority Board of Directors, stands firmly behind the idea of incinerating refuse, a theory that was popular in the '50s, but let go as the result of lack of enforcement on the part of the state and country.

"Incineration was what they said should be done, but then they walked away from it," Arrowsmith noted. "It's nothing more than pure neglect through the years that has brought about this mess. Now we're aiding in this contamination. Everyone of those landfills is going to end up polluting the ground and water."

Richard Bauser, executive director of the authority, agrees with Arrowsmith, lamenting the fact that a majority of the plant is sitting idle today.

"I firmly believe that solid waste should be burned so it never comes back to haunt us," he said. "You don't want to put your trash in the ground so that it comes back and haunts your children do you?"

The problem the authority faces is getting the member communities to agree to the bond issue. Arrowsmith and Bauser admit that there is opposition to new taxes, but claim the $3 to $4 per person that the improvements will cost is cheap in comparison to the pollution seeping out of landfills into the ground and water.

Incineration reduces one tone of rubbish to 8 percent by volume. In short, 1000 yards of garbage, when burned in the furnaces at 1,400 degrees, is reduced to just eight yards of ash. The residue is primarily metal, most of which is reclaimed.

According to Bauser, the ash that had to be produced at the plant was such that when dumped in the sand quarry it served as a filter for nonpotable ground water.

"We have to drain the quarry," explained Bauser, "and the water we're pumping out is better than what's going in."

Although nothing on the re-opening of the incinerator has been presented to the five communities formally, Bauser and Arrowsmith realize the problem with those city officials is the money.

The $6 million is almost as much as the original plant and addition cost, but far less than building a whole new facility that now carries a price tag of 160 million. The authority needs the pledge of the member communities of their full faith and credit for the bonding. Once it has that, it will be another two years before the incinerator will be back in business.

"We ended up with the best incinerator in the country in 1964," Arrowsmith said. "It was still the best run and cleanest inside and out when we were shut down last year."

"Because of this plant people have had 19 years of someplace to put their trash," Bauser added. "We started using the quarry in 1967, and we still have another 15 to 20 years of use there. There's still too much life left in this plant to do the job it should be doing."

"As the number of landfills decrease, it will cost the people more, simply because they'll need more trucks to haul it farther. The landfills of old were on bad pieces of land; now they're on good pieces of land."

It is uncertain how quickly the member communities will move on the request for additional bonding, but Arrowsmith and Bauser believe that if residents of the communities know where their rubbish is going they will bring pressure on their respective city councils to approve the funding.

They believe that is true especially in the City of Wayne, where residents were vocal about the expansion of the Woodland Meadows landfill across the street in Canton Township, an expansion site which now receives their garbage by way of the sanitation authority.

"This is a problem that won't go away," Arrowsmith said. "We have to believe that they (residents) will give support for us to go back into operation. We won't pollute the ground. We won't pollute the water. We won't pollute air."

For sale County, PCHA discuss WCGH purchase

Wayne County has begun sending out layoff notices to the 1,026 employees of Wayne County General Hospital in anticipation of its sale to a suburban health care organization.

County officials have been meeting with representatives of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA) for about three weeks to discuss the possible sale of the hospital to the group.

According to Bill Johnson of the county's department of public information, the county had hoped to make a definitive statement on the sale yesterday, possibly the announcement of reaching a purchase agreement between the county and PCHA.

However, Maureen S. Camps, director of community relations for PCHA, while acknowledging that the authority "had been approached by the county to purchase the hospital," noted that discussion of such an agreement would be premature.

"We're not saying anything right now other than there are serious negotiations taking place," she said in an interview Tuesday. "There are no substantive details available, so there's really nothing to discuss."

The county has actively been seeking a buyer for the deficit-ridden hospital and had hoped that the University of Michigan would purchase it. However, that appears unlikely as the result of problems the university had with the staff levels of the facility, leaving the feeling that "the cost of operating the hospital would be too expensive," Johnson noted.

Apparently, the county had set a price tag of $30 million on the facility, and according to Johnson, it probably will get about $25 million for it. The county would like to conclude negotiations and have a signed agreement by Nov. 30, the end of its fiscal year, and wrap up the entire transaction within 60 days.

"We would prefer the University of Michigan would purchase the hospital because it would have less of an impact on employees," he explained. "It appears PCHA will require less personnel, meaning more of a reduction in the work force."

The county has been attempting to sell the hospital since an announcement earlier this year by County Executive William Lucas that because of the facility's $14 million he would either sell it or close it.

His announcement has drawn heavy criticism from out-county residents who fear a loss of health care for the indigent, if the facility were closed or sold to a private concern.

"First and foremost in our negotiations is the care of the indigent," Johnson explained. "Second is the impact on employees and third budgetary concerns."

Layoff notices in mail

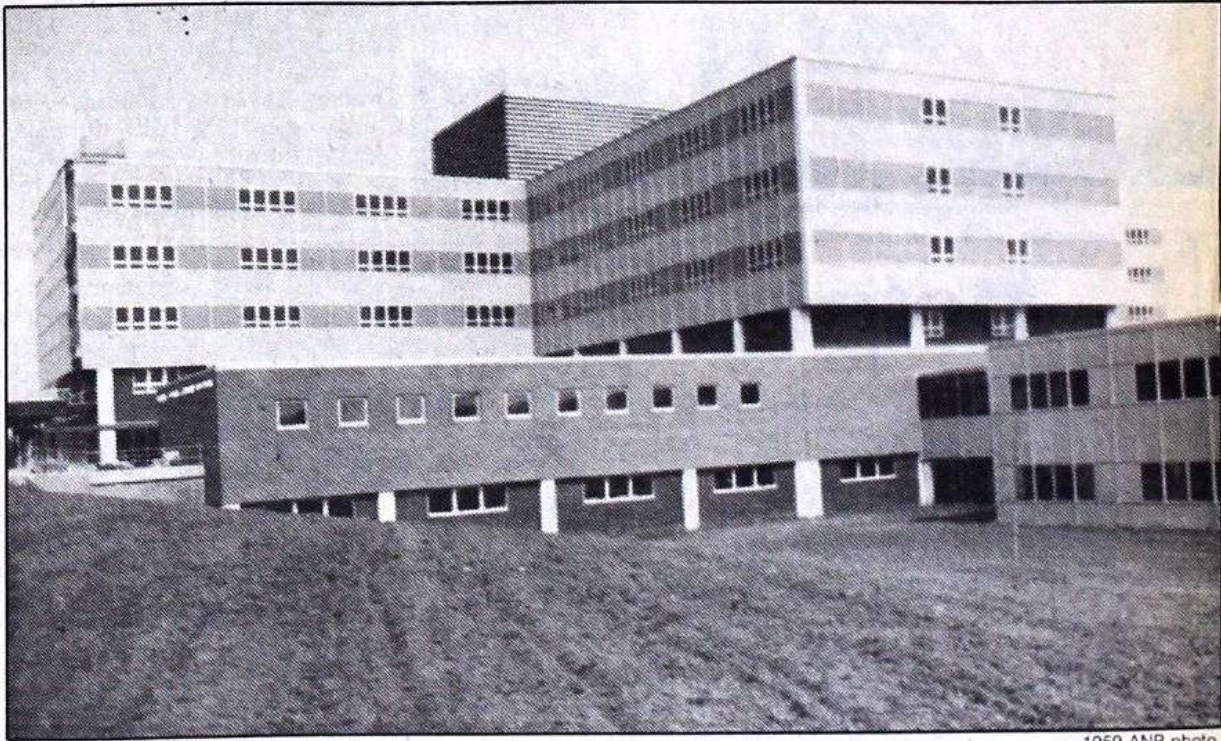

A plan to rescind hospital layoffs was considered by the Wayne County Commission last week but failed 6-5, a vote reflecting disagreement among commissioners on boundaries of legislative-executive authority.

Even if it had succeeded, it is unclear whether such a vote by the Commission would be a binding decision.

The Commission voted on the proposal Nov. 17, the day of announcement that County Executive William Lucas had issued layoff notices to about 1,000 employees of County General Hospital which he is trying to sell.

Jointly submitted by six out-commissioners, the proposed resolution says Lucas acted "without lawful authority" and warned that such layoffs would close the facility to public use as well as generate potential millions of dollars of damage against the County in unemployment, pension, worker compensation and patient abuse claims.

As proposed, the resolution would nullify the layoffs and mandate the Treasurer to continue payroll and maintenance costs at the hospital. Voting for the resolution were Commission Chairman William G. Suzor, Kay

It's for sale

Wayne County General Hospital, constructed in the late 1950's, could face a new owner, if the county is able to hammer out an agreement with the Peoples Community Hospital Authority for the purchase of the Western Wayne County medical complex.

Beard, Mary E. Dumas, Stanley F. Rozycki, Joseph L. Jurkiewicz and Richard E. Manning.

Beard led arguments that Lucas has no authority in matters effecting changes in the budget. She said the hospital layoffs parallel the incident in Detroit city government when Mayor Coleman A. Young authorized layoff of police officers without consulting City Council and was challenged in court.

"It should be established that these kinds of things cannot be done without our concurrence," said Beard.

According to Mrs. Dumas,

"The major issue is not whether the hospital closes, but of maintaining legislative authority."

HEALTHY BREADS for the Holidays

Home-baked breads are one of the most appreciated of annual holiday preparations. Baking a variety of wholesome breads, such as those pictured here, is a wise strategy to satisfy any occasion that may arise this season. Developed by the Test Kitchens of Fleischmann's Yeast, they are made with whole grain flour, nutritious ingredients such as cheese, and employ modern food preparation techniques.

Vertbrod, a traditional German yeast bread, is made with a contemporary refrigerator-dough method. The orange and fennel flavors make it one of the most distinctive of all breads.

Frosted Cherry Cheese Squares are quick to make and good to have on hand for unexpected visitors. Baked in a jelly-roll pan, the whole preparation takes only 90 minutes. The recipe's large yield makes it ideal for gift-giving, too.

The food processor has become standard equipment in many homes. Its time-saving factor streamlines preparation for this Confetti Bread, similar to the traditional loaf. The addition of whole wheat flour, candied fruit and slivered almonds makes it unique, both in texture and taste.

Confetti Christmas Bread

- Makes 1 loaf
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1 cup whole wheat flour
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 cup margarine
 - 1 package Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
 - 1/4 cup warm water (105°F. to 115°F.)
 - 3/4 cup cold milk (about)
 - 1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
 - 1/4 cup mixed candied fruits
 - 1/4 cup blanched almonds, chopped

FOOD PROCESSOR PREPARATION

With metal blade in place, in food processor bowl, combine flours, sugar, salt and margarine; process 5 to 10 seconds to combine. Dissolve Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast in warm water; pour through feed tube. Begin processing, pouring enough cold milk through feed tube in a slow steady stream until ball of dough forms on top of blade. Continue processing 50 to 60 seconds to knead dough. Carefully remove dough from processor bowl. Shape into ball; place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down. On lightly floured board, knead in raisins, candied fruits and blanched almonds. Roll dough to 10x8-inch rectangle; roll up from short end into loaf. Place in greased 8-1/2x4-1/2x2-1/2-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake at 375°F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until done. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack. If desired, dust top of loaf with confectioners sugar.

90-Minute Frosted Cherry Cheese Squares

- 2-1/4 to 2-3/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 cup margarine, softened
- 2 eggs, separated, at room temperature
- 1-1/2 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 (21-ounce) can cherry pie filling
- 1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Confectioners sugar glaze

In large bowl thoroughly mix 1-1/2 cups all-purpose flour, brown sugar, salt and undissolved Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast. In small saucepan heat milk, water and margarine until liquids are very

Dybicki-Popich are wed

An 11-day honeymoon in Hawaii followed the summer wedding of Nancy Popich, the daughter of Mrs. Christine Popich, and David Dybicki, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dybicki, all of Romulus.

St. Stephen's Catholic Church in New Boston was reserved for the young couple's Aug. 27 altar date at which The Rev. Alexander J. Wytrowski presided.

Two arrangements of white gladiolas and blue carnations and white satin pew markers adorned the church for the four o'clock double ring rite.

Mrs. Julia Mick of Romulus, cousin of the bride, was soloist with Mrs. Dorothy Roberts of Monroe serving as organist.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride was gowned in white organza embellished with Alencon and Cluney lace. The little fitted bodice, styled with bishop sleeves, a Mandarin collar and pinafore-style neckline, was attached to a toe-touching skirt which swept into a cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil of nylon illusion embroidered with flowers and edged with lace scallops, was caught to a pearl-studded cap. Completing her bridal finery was a cascade bouquet of japhet orchids, white miniature carnations, variegated English ivy and stephanotis.

Linda Sell of Ypsilanti was maid of honor at her aunt's wedding. She was distinguished by the blue picture hat she wore with her pale blue dotted Swiss, off-the-shoulder gown. Bustled at the back and ruffled at the hemline, the waist featured a self cummerbund. The nosegay she carried was comprised of yellow and white daisies, pink and white miniature carnations, blue pompons, baby's breath.

Wearing identical outfits but with white picture hats was the trio of bridesmaids: Mrs. James Sell of Ypsilanti and Mrs. David Schmoekel of Dexter, sisters of the bride; and Mrs. Carl Jordan of Wayne, sister of the bridegroom.

A light blue cotton frock with a ruffled flounce was worn by the 5-year-old flower girl, Adrienne Byrd, niece of the bridegroom, who also wore a halo of flowers in her hair and held a basket filled with matching blooms. Ring-bearer was Ryan Schmoekel, five, nephew of the bride.

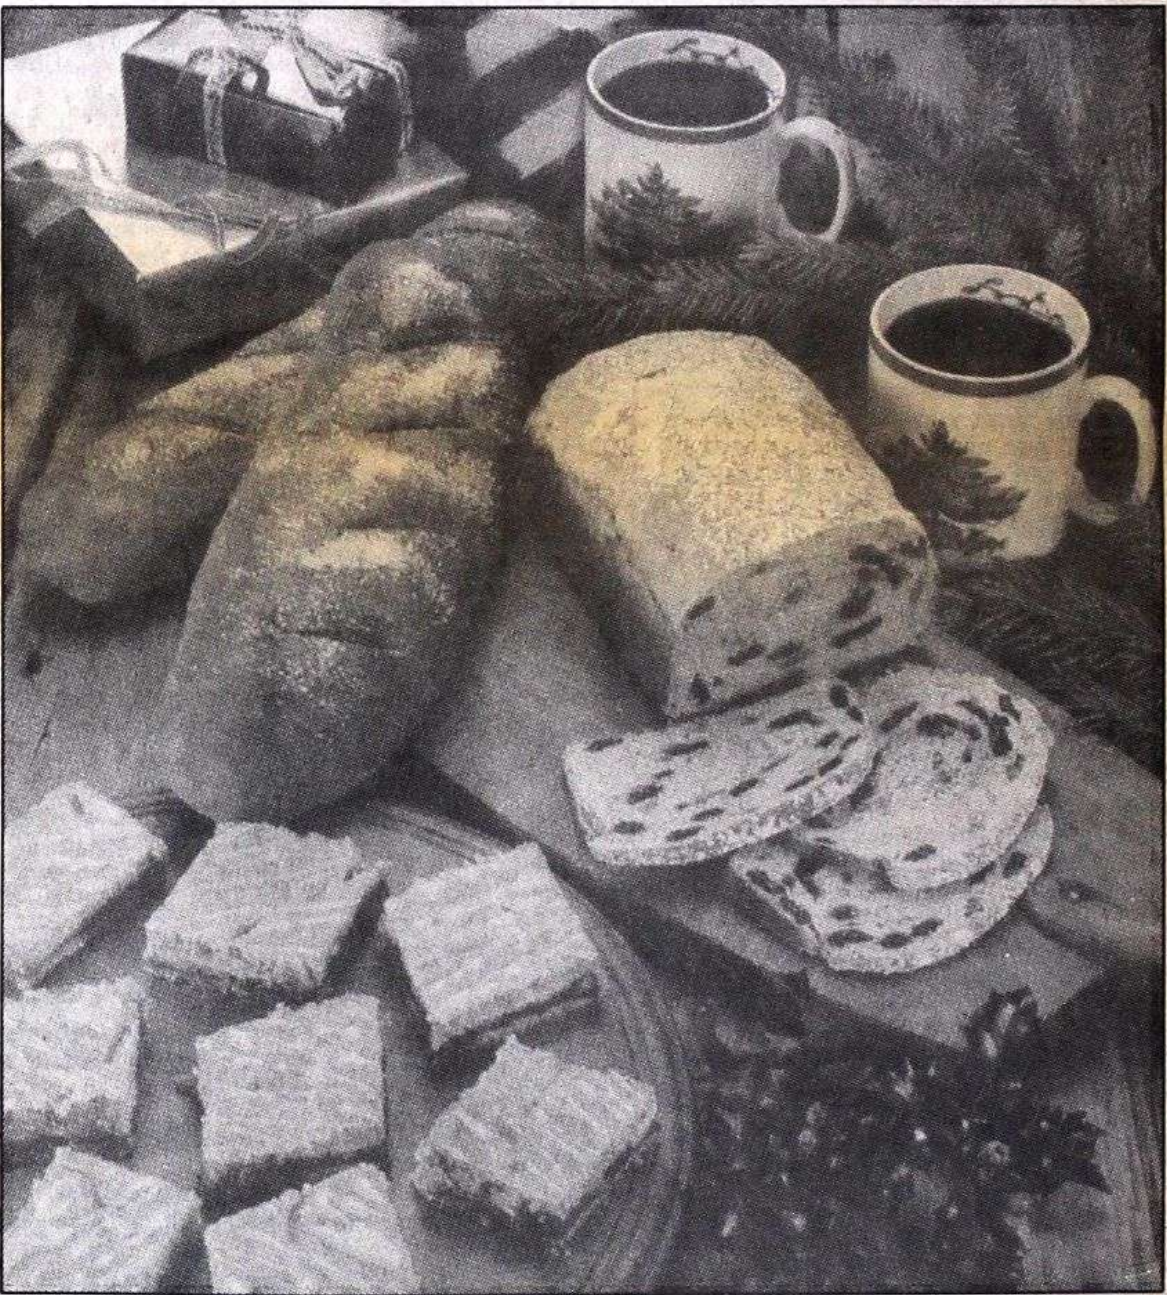

As his brother's best man, Richard Dybicki of Romulus headed a corps of ushers which included Doug Staffeld of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bride, and Sam Ruffolo of New Boston and Tom Byrd of Romulus, both brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

At the PNA Hall in Belleville, where the reception was held, the bride's mother welcomed some 200 guests in a formal aqua gown of qiana designed with a cape and pleated skirt. A corsage of aqua-tipped mini carnations and yellow sweetheart roses completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother chose for the occasion a pale blue polyester gown with a rose bud print jacket. Her flowers were pale blue mini — carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

A 1977 graduate of Romulus High School, the bride is currently working as a secretary at Kelsey-Hayes in Romulus. Her husband, a 1976 RHS alumnus, served for four years with the U. S. Navy and is now a driver for Sheraton Motor Inn of Romulus.

So — you've got that Christmas list made out and even have a few names X-ed off. Cousin Ambrose, Great-Aunt Lydia and even grouchy ol' Uncle Hector have been taken care of but — are you forgetting anyone? Those people, for instance, who play such an important part in your everyday life — the ones who you (all of us, for that matter) just sorta take for granted?

Did you add Perry the paperboy or Betsy the babysitter to that roster? Bewildered as what to get for those teen-agers? If you're not tuned in to that generations preferences, you'd be safe to give a gift certificate to perhaps a popular hamburger place, an ice cream parlour or one for a department or specialty shop.

Don't overlook retired Mr. Doaks-down-the-street who pet-sits with Rover or Kittykat whenever you're out of town; Clarissa the cleaning lady; that college entrepreneur who each summer aids his education by seeing to your lawn, shrubs and flowers. Something as easy as a check would show them your appreciation. Let them pick out their own gift or do as they please with the extra cash. Put it atop a plateful of your chocolate chip cookies for a personal touch.

Another group of people, often too busy for much time in the kitchen, are your kids' teachers — Mrs. Reading, Miss Math and Mr. Rhetoric (his wife will love you — or if he's single, he'll love you! Be sure you make your presentations in all these food-giving endeavors pretty and practical. Arrange cookies on a colorful tray or a cookie sheet (make it silverstone or teflon, please), or in a holiday tin; breads on a bread board or platter; cakes on a cake plate (there are some lovely inexpensive ones to be found), candy in glass jars or pretty baskets; jams or jellies in sherbet or wine glasses, candy dishes, or lidded glass jars especially made to show off raspberry, grape or plum fixin's.

Be sure to include Maxwell the mailman along with those other "regulars" and, lest you forget, Sam the snow-plower (what would we do without him on those mornings we awaken to drifts across the drive and in front of the garage?) Tins of nuts, a bottle of brandy, wine, champagne, some of your artistry — fudge, peanut brittle, perhaps a pecan or apple pie; or, again, a nice check.

That lovely lady who used to care for your kiddies so long ago and is now homebound or in a convalescent home — wouldn't she be pleased to have you pay a visit during the holiday season. And wouldn't she be delighted with some of your homemade goodies or perhaps a little tin of tea or some bath powder in a squeeze-type container.

The receptionist at the doctor's or dentist's, if she's one of that rare breed who cares about your immediate problem and manages to get you an emergency appointment. By all means, let her know how much you appreciate her concern.

Mrs. Seegrum the seamstress (a real life-line for Yours Truly who hates anything involved with needle and thread) who is always able to do a hurry-up job of hemming or mending when it's most needed. She's been so involved with your requests that she hasn't time for Christmas baking so — what would make her happier than a homemade coffee cake or brownies or a tray of your special cookies.

If you're an apartment dweller and have one of those SUPER supers (superintendents) one who listens and acts when you tell him the faucet is dripping or the door is sticking or cold air is coming in the east window, include him, too. He probably wouldn't mind munching on some of your walnut bars or coconut macarons either.

This Thanksgiving GIVE THANKS

Hannah or Henri the hairdresser are probably right there at the top of your roster. How would we latter-day beauties manage without their skill to do-us-over? You're probably a "standing" with her/him and by now know his/her likes and dislikes. There should be no problem with gift-giving in those cases.

Think of others who've done you kindnesses throughout the year — have come through in emergencies, have been a shoulder to cry on, a friend you can always count on. When you're preparing those culinary works of art or are out shopping and spot something particularly lovely, think of that person as part of your holiday giving as well. We all have those "special" people to remember — they don't have to have a title or fit in a particular category to be shown you care.

YOU'VE GOT THE HICCUPS! — And you simply cannot get rid of them?

You've tried holding a silver knife between your teeth while attempting to drink a glass of water? (That's got to be the all-time screwball and messiest tip of all.) You've laced your tongue with sugar 'til it feels like something out of the petrified candy forest? You've held your breath for beaucoup minutes and all that resulted was a broken blood vessel?

And now you want a sure-fire solution for those miserable little blips, right?

Hokay — here's one straight from the fourth centry BC offered by Plato, the Greek philosopher, no less, and courtesy the Health Insurance Institute.

Hold your breath and if you have done so for some time and the hiccups are no better, then gargle with a little water; and if they still continue, tickle your nose with something and sneeze; and if you sneeze once or twice, even the most violent hiccups are sure to go away.

Hippocrates, another ancient Greek and a physician known as the father of medicine, wrote: If sneezing is produced, the singultus being temporarily suppressed, the singultus will be cured.

And if it all sounds like Greek to you, "singultus" is just another way of saying "hiccup."

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson recently returned after a three week's trip to Florida. While there they spent some time with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Smith at New Smyrna Beach and visited EPCOT and other places of interest. Enroute home they stopped to see friends, former Belleville residents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Patalocco at Fairchance, Pa.

Guests at the home of Mrs. June Hawkins recently were friends, Katherine McCollum, formerly of Hoeft Road, now from McKenzie, Tenn., and the latter's sisters, Dorothy Cox of Atwood and Ann Cook of Bruceton, Tenn.

Dale Arnold has been a patient at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne this past week.

Mrs. Jane Stryker of Collins, O. returned recently after spending a week with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carey. On Friday, with their daughter, Susan Featheringill and girls, they spent the day in Kalamazoo with Randy and Sylvia Thornberg and small son, Benjamin. Sylvia and son returned with them for the week-end.

Mrs. Louis Bravatto was a week-end guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Louis and Marlene Alveroe and family at Dexter.

On Sunday, Nov. 13, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Schultz entertained members of their family in celebration of their son, Sam's 14th birthday. Present besides his sisters, Katie, Andrea and Susie, were his grandmother, Mrs. Frances Korgal, his aunt Mary Korgal, and cousins, Laurie and Marcy.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mericle spent Tuesday in Toledo with the latter's mother, Mrs. Miles Berkeley, who has been quite ill.

Mrs. Zula Hopson was a recent overnight guest of her friend, Mrs. Lela Whitt of Ypsilanti.

Ten members of the Kitchen Belles Band, under the direction of Myrtie Wells, were recent guests of the Riverview Later

Day Saints Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Paladino and son, Joseph, of Romulus spent the past week-end at Mount Pleasant with the latter's sister, Natalie Gress, a student at CMU. Enroute home they called on friends in Jackson.

Juanita Akers was hostess for the Past Noble Grand's Club of Astral Rebekah Lodge at her home on Liberty Street. Following the business meeting cards and a lunch were enjoyed.

warm (120°F. to 130°F.) Margarine does not need to melt. Add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg yolks and ½ cup all-purpose flour; beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in whole wheat flour and enough of remaining all-purpose flour to make soft dough. Turn out onto well floured board; knead 1 minute. Divide dough in half. On floured board roll each half to 16x11-inch rectangle. Transfer one layer to greased 15-½x10-½x1-inch jelly roll pan. Coarsely chop cherries in pie filling; spread mixture over dough in pan. In small bowl, beat cream cheese until light; beat in egg whites, granulated sugar and vanilla extract. Spread mixture over cherry layer. Top with 2nd layer of dough, sealing edges. Snip surface. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, for 45 minutes. Bake at 375°F. for 25 minutes or until done. Cool slightly in pan. While warm, frost with confectioners sugar glaze. Cut into diamond shapes to serve.

Young Career candidates sought by BPW Club

The Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club is in the process of seeking out young career women in the Belleville area. BPW, in keeping with its annual list of activities, wishes to recognize these women for their accomplishments and to help promote them in businesses and professions.

The Young Career Women's program (YCW) is a local, district, state and national endeavor sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, Inc.

The criteria for being a participant in the Belleville YCW program is: she must live or work in the Belleville area; must have been employed for at least one year in her chosen field; must be between the ages of 21 and 30; must have contributed outstanding service in her community or on her job.

Any interested working woman meeting those requirements may contact Eleanor at 467-1522 for more information. Calls must be received before Friday, Dec. 9, 1983.

WOTM notes

Women of the Moose Chapter 1135 held its November chapter meeting with Senior Regent Beverly Hall conducting the meeting. Four new members were enrolled.

Library Chairperson Mary Miller and her committee reported their projects for the month of November were dinner for the men's enrollment and a card party. Upcoming events include Nov. 27 - Green Cap Day in honor of Junior Graduate Regent Debbie Wilsey. Co-workers from other chapters will be visiting on this special day. All members are invited to help Debbie celebrate on this special day. Registration is at 1 p.m. A light lunch will follow.

A bazaar will be held on fish fry Fridays, Nov. 25, Dec. 2, 9 and 16. All committees are invited to participate. Monies collected will help committees donate to their special project.

Dec. 12 is social service chapter night. This is also the Christmas party and all members are invited. Bring a dish to pass for a potluck dinner and a gift (about $5) gift wrapped for exchange. Dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. Attend and have a fun evening.

The easiest way to get to the Mall is to crawl.

The SEMTA Mall Crawler.

Just step on board SEMTA Route 185 to Westland Center, Fairlane Center, Sears Center, and all points in between.

We call it the Mall Crawler. You'll call it easy. Because the Mall Crawler comes by approximately every hour on its way between Westland, Fairlane and Sears Center.

No traffic to worry about, no parking problems, convenient pick-up right at the door of the mall.

How Much?
As little as $1.00 each way. As little as 75¢ for students. Or as little as 50¢ for Senior Citizens.* And Saturday adult fares are an even greater bargain (75¢ each way and 50¢ for Seniors and students—with no zone charges added). And normal-size shopping carts and strollers are welcome.

What Stores and Stops?

All the stores of Westland, Fairlane and Sears Center. Plus Cherry Hill Shopping Center, River Oaks Shopping Center, and stops at Henry Ford Community College, U of M Dearborn, Downtown Lincoln Park. And specialty stores and restaurants along the way.

Where & When?

The Mall Crawler travels through Westland, Dearborn, Ecorse and other cities between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. five days a week. And between 9:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Saturday.

Take the Mall Crawler this week. It delivers the best shopping right to your door. For route, schedule, information on fares and availability of lift-equipped buses, phone 962-5515.

Thanksgiving 1983

Mankind still has lot to be thankful for

There is a general feeling that prosperity is just around the corner, and that the worst is behind us.

This is the message that seems to be ringing throughout the state and nation on the eve of Thanksgiving 1983.

Michigan, because of its marriage to the automobile industry, has begun diversification of its industry and, although there is a long way to go before this state snaps out of its worst depression, the move toward an economy based on a wide range of industries and businesses is apparently working.

To offer proof, the vast exodus from this state during the late 70's has come to a standstill. People are now returning instead to Michigan because Michigan has always stood as the lighthouse of hope and opportunity.

Employment throughout the land today stands at 9.9 percent, a far cry from the 12 to 13 percent a year ago. And economists are optimistic that, barring a complete catastrophe, employment next year can be cut to the 5 and 6 percent nation-wide and to less than double digits in the state.

Yes, there are a lot of things to be thankful for on this, the holiday to give thanks.

Although there is turmoil in this world, and when has there been a period that there hasn't been? We still are at peace. We carry arms in far off countries to protect that peace. Let's use this holiday and pray that there is never a "The Day After."

And, let us use this "Year of Thanksgiving" to pray for the leaders of this world so that they continue to negotiate and to use words — not atom bombs — as the means of settling international disputes.

For many, this Thanksgiving Day, the dream of a good life remains just that — a dream.

Let's hope that our dreams for world peace, an end to hunger, and a good life for all may come true before we sit down at the table to give thanks next year.

Mayor Emerson

He'll always be mayor in residents' hearts

Monday, November 21, 1983, Justin Emerson conducted his final City Council meeting as Mayor of Belleville.

After eight productive, happy and pleasurable years, Mr. Emerson has decided to retire from political office. He is the last of a line of mayors to reign over this rustic city before its citizens accepted — at his recommendation — to change the form of government from a mayor-council to a city manager-council government.

Mr. Emerson felt that a "professional person trained in municipal affairs" would handle the daily affairs of city government better than a part-time mayor. The voters accepted his recommendation.

We hope we are not leaving the reader with the impression that Mr. Emerson was one of these "part-time" mayors. As in everything he did in life, he gave "100 percent" and this remarkable man was able to keep this city of 3-square miles and 5,000 residents "a beautiful place to live and an excellent place to raise a family."

He should know. Mr. Emerson and his wife, Marguerite, who is a retired Belleville High School teachers, raised their family here.

Now at 72, Mr. Emerson feels "that, although it has been a lot of fun to be at City Hall and enjoyed the people he came in contact with, it's time to move on to other things."

During his tenure as mayor, Mr. Emerson helped bring cable TV to the city; he has been instrumental in keeping Belleville a viable community to live in and his personable approach to everyday community problems has kept the city free of the controversy and mayhem some of the other area communities have endured.

"Justy" likes to point out that he has married over 400 couples.

They will probably never forget him.

And neither will those who have come in contact with him over these two decades.

New effort to resolve library essential to Westland's future

There's no better time than now for citizens and local officials to organize an effort to solve Westland's library problem once and for all.

First, we applaud the on-going efforts of library supporters and local officials to improve and expand services. We believe the key to solving our problem effectively, however, is the formation of a task force made up of city officials, civic organization leaders, library representatives, and citizens to spearhead the study of feasible options. We wholeheartedly endorse and lend our support to the task of firmly establishing library services in Westland. We believe that fostering the growth of knowledge is essential to maintaining a free society and rich community life.

Westland officials are to be commended for their efforts this year to maintain financial support for libraries; the issue has been a matter of grave concern to city officials. Because city revenue dropped and the cost of providing municipal services increased this year, Westland officials were forced to reduce general fund expenditures for library support.

Each year, Westland has contributed a portion of the operating expenses to libraries in neighboring communities which residents may use. The local press recently reported that Westland residents lost borrowing privileges at libraries in Canton and Garden City as a result of the city's reduction in library spending. Currently, we can only use the Wayne-Westland Library on Sims, and Livonia's two libraries.

Westland citizens are demanding more library services, which is the most compelling reason we must develop a permanent solution to what has been a chronic problem. We must initiate decisive local action to guarantee library services in the future.

As your Senator, I am proud to have sponsored the Cooperative Library Act of 1977.

This law created Michigan's cooperative library system and provides a method for distributing state revenue to local libraries. One requirement of the law is that communities which are part of a cooperative library system must contribute the equivalent of three-tenths of a mill in local revenue in order for cooperative libraries to receive state aid. Currently, Westland is below the minimum local funding requirement of the Cooperative Library Act.

Only because revenue contributed by other communities in the Wayne County Library system offset Westland's shortage, has state aid not been reduced. What about next year?

Which brings us back to the problem: What is the best policy for permanently providing the level of library services demanded by citizens of Westland? Many questions must be answered before a responsible decision can be made: Should the city continue contributing to neighboring libraries, or should Westland build its own library? If having our own library would best serve the public, should it be a new building, or could we renovate an existing structure? What is the best method of financing public library services in our city? Obviously, the problem cannot be solved overnight.

We are confident the people of Westland can and will solve this problem. We have the abilities, resourcefulness, and motivation to adopt a new library service policy which will increase community culture now and in the future. Forming a special task force to systematically explore all policy options would be a decisive starting point.

Ex-Van Buren police chief wants to keep record straight

This is addressed to Managing Editor Tom Mooradian's column and interview with the Van Buren Township Supervisor, the paragraphs concerning the handling of Police Reports and the statements: Many police reports were not sent to the State Police Computer in Lansing. Citizens complaints were being taken by the State Police and Wayne County Sheriff and thirdly, 1981 Record Keeping. The previous administration's statements in these three areas was, and still is, in my opinion - pure unadulterated bull. This 1983 article carries overtones of the same rhetoric.

I retired as Chief of Police on December 1, 1981. The records show that from January 1 through November 1, 1981, a total of 5,019 complaints were handled by the then all Part-Time Department. Of these complaints, ALL that were required by Law, were sent to the Michigan State Police Computer in Lansing. I personally prepared and initialed them, got them ready for mailing and then gave them to the Police Secretary, who in turn mailed them for me. This procedure had to be completed before the 10th of the month in compliance with the Law.

I brought the Michigan State Police Sergeant who had originally designed the Complaint Form (called LEMS) to instruct our Officers on the use and why of the Computer Form. Let me explain the significance of this: Code numbers are inserted on the top section of the form for Statistical Purposes... Many Van Buren Officers had complained that it was too much paperwork to fill in the numbers (required by law) ... but they did it. I left December 1st... the New Police Commander took over and agreed with the Officers - too much paperwork - so he simply threw the forms out. 3 months after I left, having not received the paperwork, the State informed the Van Buren Police Department to prepare and submit them for that period.

In 1981 Van Buren Township was an unincorporated area. I always worked closely with the Michigan State Police, the Wayne County Sheriff and local agencies. With a budget of only $152,000, 18 Part-time Officers, and the used cars acquired from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, I appreciated all of the help I could get, in order to stay within my budget. (Statistical Data gathered by all agencies that worked in the township were processed and forwarded to the computer in Lansing by the Agency writing the complaint).

The Statistical Information is and has been available through the Computer section in Lansing.

Record Keeping: Three sets of Records were kept, 1.) the Original, 2.) A Copy of the Original, and 3.) A Cross Reference Index Card. The Original was kept in a binder in numerical order, the copy was filed by Complaint Classification and the cross reference file was maintained by the Police Secretary.

I believe your article was misleading about the events of 1981 — I certainly cannot vouch for 1982.

'The Day After'

Tom Mooradian
Managing Editor

What do you write? What do you say? One just sits numb and angry that science has brought us to this precipice. We know we can't turn back. Should we leap? And the end. Wouldn't it be the best?

"The Day After."

Watching that awesome TV production one quickly realizes that fantasy land could quickly become reality. Wasteland. Is this the end that the trillions for defense is working for?

For more than two hours we sat there stunned. The outrage is that we probably can't do anything to avert the pending holocaust. That could be me. My family. My friends and neighbors. But we are not man-ikins. We are people who want peace. And happiness and love — for all mankind.

World War III. Quick exchanges of nuclear missiles.

"The Day After."

It is clear that it can happen. When? Hopefully not in my lifetime. Or my children's. Or their children's. But the stage has been set. The characters have been selected. The leading roles have been determined.

And now we're waiting for the curtain to go up. And down on mankind.

The life force in all of us is fierce. Unfortunately, so is the death force.

Asked a colleague what he thought. His answer: "It looks like that's the way we're headed. We've got to change the course. But I can't see how. We're both on a collision course and no way are we or they going to change."

Can we change?
Can they change?
Doesn't seem so, does it?

The unpredictable flow of international events can eventually lead to the end of the world as we know it. It is the first time, I believe, that if world chaos erupts, it would be best to be listed among the first victims.

Why so pessimistic about man's ability to survive, even under the most painful conditions? After all, first and second strikes would "only wipe out millions of people and leave millions 'injured.'" But "The Day After" made it emphatically clear that the day after there would be nothing to rebuild and little hope to want to survive.

As in the 1930's, the motion-picture, "The Grapes of Wrath," which depicted a family trying to exist in the harsh realities of a Great Depression and Oklahoma's dust bowl. This TV production, "The Day After" will leave its mark on all who sat through the horrifying details of a nuclear exchange.

One may say that this writer is over-reacting, has become wrought in emotions — "it would never happen."

But we said that it couldn't happen in 1914.

And in 1941.

And in Korea and in Vietnam.

Maybe history won't repeat. But if it does, let's remember Einstein's words about World War III.

"I don't know how they will fight World War III," Einstein commented, "but World War IV will be fought with stones and sticks."

Canton's Poole
answers letter

EDITOR - After reading the "Letter to the Editor" in a paper on Oct. 31 from some persons who were upset because they were not being rehired for employment with Canton Township, I feel that it is necessary to clarify this issue.

First of all, the writers stated that they are former employees of the Canton Treasurer's Department. This is not accurate. They are former employees of Canton Township who were assigned to work in the Treasurer's Department. The Treasurer's Department is not a unique entity unto itself. It is one of many divisions of the entire Township organization and should not be considered as anything different.

Second, they stated they were "promised by our employer, Maria Sterlini, that our job would be open and available for this year's tax season." Again, their employer was not Maria Sterlini, it was Canton Township. The Treasurer's Office is not a private business, but rather a part of the rules and regulations, practices and policies as every other Township department.

The Michigan Compiled Laws state the Supervisor is responsible to:

1. "Prepare and administer the annual budget under policies formulated by the township board and keep the said board fully advised at all times as to the financial condition and needs of the township."
2. "Be responsible to the township board for the efficient administration of all department of the township government."
3. "Assume all the duties and responsibilities as personnel director of all township employees or delegate such duties to some other officer or employee."

It is true that I have refused to rehire these people. I have done so because I believe that the presence of these individuals in the Township building will cause morale problems with many, if not all, of the current Township employees working in the building. In their previous letter to the editor on March 28, 1983 these individuals made broad charges against all but three Township employees in which they accused the Township employees of "ignoring them, giving them the cold shoulder, making sarcastic and snide remarks to them, showing them hostility, and of being illogical and ignorant."

Needless to say, this letter caused a great deal of negative feelings toward these people on the part of many employees. As an elected public official I expect to take negative comments like these from time to time, it comes with the territory. But I do not think that the employees of the Township should be subjected to such treatment, unfair charges, and inaccurate statements.

I am extremely concerned with the statement that these women were "promised" a job with the Township. Every elected official and all Department heads have been warned by me and our Labor Attorney NOT TO MAKE PROMISES. The Township and the TAXPAYERS ARE LIABLE for promises made to employees, even though the promises are improper and the people making the promises are not authorized to do so.

Individuals are hired by the Township because of their qualifications, including their ability to get along with the other Township employees, not because some Township official promises them a job.

To further put this in the proper perspective, it should be mentioned that the ladies and I got along nicely (they even invited me to visit with them at lunch one day while we were at separate tables) until I DENIED them a raise. The Treasurer tried to give six part-time employees a raise two weeks before they departed. I denied all of them.

It is often funny and titillating to criticize the "boss", "foreman", etc. It is sometimes popular to take shots at the chief decision maker. It is NOT FUNNY, nor popular, to criticize your fellow workers. It creates turmoil, tension, bad feelings, etc. between the workers.

Since it has become known that an attempt was being made to hire them I have had many objections from employees and Department heads.

It is in the best interest of this Township, the government and the employees of the Township not to rehire these people because of the charges they made when they ended their employment. i.e. Other employees were sarcastic, made snide remarks to them, and were illogical and ignorant. To rehire these people after they upset and antagonized the employees would only aggravate the situation. These are the basic facts in the matter and can be documented. However, as far as I am concerned, the matter is closed and should not have come up at all.

The facts and truth will continue to come out whether people like it or not.

If people are going to continue to get mad at me because I turn down frivolous requests for raises, so be it. You better get ready for some more mail because I will be denying any raises intended to ingratiate someone at the taxpayers expense.

fice was all about.

Millage loss:
Everyone's loser

EDITOR - I was appalled at the defeat of the millage in Romulus. When are parents and other community members going to get their heads out of the sand and stop blaming just schools and teachers for the failure of children to meet educational expectations.

I think that we can all agree that poor teachers do not produce good students and that good teachers are more likely to have success in motivating students. Every school district has some very good teachers and unfortunately some very mediocre or poor ones.

The Romulus school's staff is of just as high a quality as other Michigan districts. If we were to trade staffs with Grosse Pointe the children in both places would continue to progress just as they do now.

What makes the difference than? Parents, social background, parent and cultural expectations, family income, role models, baby sitters, school district finances, T.V. time. There is multiple causation, but who wants to blame themselves and shoulder their share of the guilt for low achievement.

Kids who come from affluent communities have more advantages and wider experience from the moment they are born. They come from high achieving backgrounds and expectations are higher. Their peer group supports them because they have similar backgrounds. Some capable adult(s) probably spend more time with them as infants. And there are many other advantages that accrue to them because of their economic status. All of this does not say that these children do not have other serious problems in their lives, but they achieve in school.

Children from lower income communities may have more limited experiences, especially as infants and toddlers. They are often, out of necessity, entrusted to a baby sitter for much of the day. The baby sitter may be an inexperienced teenager or an older adult who has not done a very good job of bringing up her/his own family. Parents return from work exhausted, with barely enough energy to put dinner on the table, straighten the house and relax for the evening.

There is little time to play, love, assist with homework, impart values or supervise activities. The peer group expectation and pressure is toward mediocrity or worse. Parenting skills are sometimes lacking because of the parents own limited upbringing and/or education. The child may seldom get beyond the confines of his own neighborhood. Many single parent homes exist. The list of correctable disadvantages could go on and on.

Most often by the time a child enters kindergarten the pattern is already set for school achievement and attitude. Our best chance to change that pattern is to provide the best schools possible for the kids. That means a full six hour day of instruction as a minimum, reasonable class sizes, physical education, art and music offerings, librarians, modern equipment, new technology, field trips, after school offerings, new text books — in other words adequate financing.

Every citizen has a stake in education, whether or not they have children in school. Let's break the cycle of low achievers producing low achievers. The schools are only one factor but by giving educators needed resources they can do their part. Parents and other citizens must also shoulder their responsibility in raising the achievement level of Romulus kids.

reflections

'Grandma dearest'

I don't know whether I should tell you about this, but ever since it happened, and the remembrance of it crosses my mind, I crack up.

The reason I am afraid I shouldn't really tell it is because it might destroy my image of the loving, gentle grandmother and besides destroying that image, it might cause the hairs on some grandmother's hair to raise straight up, because they would never dream of taking a paddle to the little bare behinds of their grandchildren.

But I still think it is funny.

It happened that week when I stayed with my three grandsons while their mother was in the hospital giving birth to their baby sister. This event caused wild merriment and great joy in the household, and any grandmother who has ever had to contend with wild merriment and great joy among three grandsons will know without any graphic description what I am talking about.

And so it came to the day before the new baby and the mama were to return home. Excitement permeated the home, and the little kids were busy planning on what they were going to say, what they were going to do, when mama came. And then came the hour for Bobby, who is just three, to have his bath and go to bed.

He didn't want to go to bed. He didn't mind the bath. Actually, he loved the bath for he pretended it was a swimming pool, and he climbed out when his grandmother's head was hunched into the linen closet, climbed up on the toilet and dove into the tub. The water rose in mighty waves and sloshed over the tub, hitting grandma right in the calves of her legs, which made her dance. And naturally Grandma couldn't look with perfect serenity at a naked little kid diving across the bathroom into a tub of water, no matter how saintly she was.

And I have never claimed to be saintly. I grabbed that little kid out of the tub and walloped his little butt. The walloping was partly to impart understanding of the word danger, but mostly it was to vent my own frustration and fear that the little kid would knock his head off and not be here the next day to welcome his mama home. And his parents would never forgive me! Neither would I ever forgive myself. So while he yelled and I walloped, I kept telling myself that I was doing it for his own good, and his mama's good and his daddy's good, and finally, my own good.

Well, after I got the lesson across to him I wrapped him in a big towel, looked into his tear-drenched eyes, and hugged him tight. I kept hugging him tighter and tighter because I was so grateful that he had survived his leap into the tub in that moment of inattention on my part, and partly because he is the cutest thing and he smelled so good from his bath, and he is just a baby, and I love him.

Three seconds later he was leaping from the top of the bunk bed across the room to his own bed.

I grabbed him and put him in his mother's bed, coercing him to sleep in "Mumma's" bed that night. He settled down and then remembered he hadn't said his prayers.

He said his prayers. He blessed everyone from mama and daddy to Copper (the dog). I kissed him goodnight and left the room, only to be brought back in suddenly when I heard a loud thump and found the kid on the floor. He had been jumping, leaping wildly into the air. I tucked him in again, and he said his prayers again.

Joyce Hagelthorn

Three times I was yanked back into that room by the little kid's exuberance... and finally I got mad. Honestly, I know there are grandmothers out there who never get mad, and I wish I was one of them. But I am not. I got mad. I grabbed his father's belt from the top of the refrigerator, where everyone knows father's belts should always be kept, and I went sailing down that hall, threatening and cracking that belt against the wall. Of course, this covered the kid, and he began to beg me not to hit him.

"Are you going to stay in that bed?" I shouted.

"Yes," he shouted back.

I tucked him in again and still frustrated, I turned to leave the room.

"Gwandma," he called.

"What?" I yelled.

"I gotta say my pwayes."

Down he knelt, once again, and he prayed, "Bwess my mama; bwess my daddy; bwess my two gwandpa's; bwess my little gwandma, but DON'T bwess her!" Amen!

We need the
WCGH facility

EDITOR - Will someone please tell me when county hospitals became profit making organizations. The concept of Wayne County General Hospital was established in 1832 because there was a need for such a facility and those needs are clearly defined in the Preamble to the Bylaws of the Wayne County Board of County Institutions.

Will someone also tell me why the imposed concessions which has been forced on AFSCME members, have not been forced on the other bargaining units? AFSCME members are first class citizens too. We pay our taxes on time and would have paid our mortgage payments on time had we been allowed to continue our five-day work week status.

I wonder how many employees of any organization realize that if the Impasse Position which has been forced on AFSCME members is upheld by the Court, an Impasse Position could be forced on them as well. All management has to do is have their negotiating team present a proposal to the unions and then stand firm. Management can, at any given time, declare themselves at an impasse.

Does anyone know what it is like working under an Impasse Position? You have no rights other than the rights management wants you to have. Your 15, 20 or 25 or more years seniority is no longer recognized and management can, under the pretense of "wiping out the deficit" place whomever they please on a four-day work week status. I use the word pretense because I fail to see how a handful of employees working four days a week can wipe out anything when you have employees working five days a week, with some working overtime, receiving double-time and triple-time pay as well and you are told that there is nothing you can do about it because you do not have a contract.

And now they tell you that the Hospital is being sold and/or closed on November 30th and as of that date your four-day work week status is changed to layoff status.

Will someone please explain to me what the hell my sacri-me, at least — that my long-forgotten homily should surface on the very day that Geraldo Rivera spends an hour with Barbra Streisand on "20/20". Barbra Streisand is one of my heroes (heroines?) and is, in fact, the epitome of my homily.

Mona Grigg

Gawky and homely and with a talent not yet obvious to the naked ear, Streisand was laughed at and ridiculed in the early days and was literally booed off the stage — and each time she came back with a voice more finely tuned and an image more finely honed — until there was no ignoring the persona — or that colossal talent.

She could have given up — most of us would have — but she didn't. And it's that kind of success story that inspires so many of us who keep battling our heads against stubborn obstacles, struggling to learn and to grow — all in the name of "letting our voices be heard."

mona grigg

On audacity...and Streisand

As I was Spring-cleaning my office the other day (yes, I know this is Fall), pulling three-year-old, once-important papers off of my bulletin board, I found underneath one of them a long-forgotten message to myself: "Audacity may get you in the door, but skill finds you a seat."

I wrote that message to myself years ago, when I was busy sending out sample chapters of a book I was writing to only the biggest and the best New York publishers. I decided, on my own, without knowing anything about the publishing business — and without knowing another living soul who "wrote", that this book — my book — was very probably the blockbuster of that year — if not the century.

In order to insure its proper place in the book world, I spent days composing the wittiest, most clever cover letter ever, and sent it along with my precious sample chapters.

I sent the same cover letter and the same sample chapters to five publishers at once, explaining that since this discovery (that I could write) came somewhat late in life, and since I wasn't getting any younger (yes, I actually said that), desperate measures were needed to insure my proper place among the literati before I kicked off. (Not those words exactly, but something equally idiotic.)

When I got all five sets of sample chapters back from all five publishers (two sent rejection postcards, two sent one-or two-paragraph, hand-typed letters saying, "Thanks, but no thanks"), and one sent back a long letter saying, in essence, that they loved my clever letter but not enough to publish my book), I, undaunted, devised a new and even more clever letter and sent copies of it, along with those same sample chapters, to five literary agents.

One of the packets, traveling with the speed of light, made the round-trip from Detroit to New York and back again in three days, seemingly untouched except for one spot in the lower right-hand corner of the second page that looked suspiciously like — dare I say it? — barf.

Another agent, a woman, said, "Too much like Bombeck: besides, I'm not into housewife stuff."

Two more rejection postcards, and then the kicker: He liked what I had sent so far, this agent said, and, yes, he would be glad to read the rest — just as soon as I sent him the $200 required for reading fees.

So that particular manuscript is still languishing in a drawer and I take it out every now and then and laugh at the good parts and groan at the bad parts (which, as you might suspect, are more common than the good), and wonder at how I thought I could just sit down one day, without a proper apprenticeship, and write a book.

I wrote that little homily ("Audacity may get you in the door...") after that fifth rejection — which was actually the tenth rejection, counting the publishers — and agreed that I should probably learn something about writing before I sent off any more clever cover letters.

Which brings me to why I'm revealing this little embarrassment in the first place: It has to do with Barbra Streisand. Interesting — to INKSTER — A Christmas Bazaar will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dec. 3 and 4 at St. Kevin Church, 30043 Parkwood. Arts and crafts, baked items, a grab bag, Santa Claus and a raffle will all be part of the fun. For those wishing table space, call 505-1305 or 728-0490.

BELLEVILLE — The "Giving Tree," a project of the Belleville Junior Study Club, is once again in operation in the lobby of National Bank of Detroit on Main Street where it will remain until Dec. 9. Community members and anyone visiting the bank are invited to choose a valuable, hand-crafted Christmas ornament, free of charge, in trade for a gift-wrapped present suitable for an area needy child. The "Tree" is available to the public during normal bank-

Huron to light up Christmas Tree

The Huron Township Recreation Committee is sponsoring its fourth annual Christmas Tree Lighting. The program is scheduled for 7 p.m., Sun., Dec. 4. Township residents are invited to join in friendship and goodwill.

The tree will be lit, carols sung, hot chocolate and cookies will be provided and that special out-of-town visitor will have a treat for all the girls and boys.

For more information please call 753-4466.

On Saturday at 10 a.m., the Recreation Committee and Township employees will volunteer their time to decorate the township. "We would be happy to see any additional help anyone might be able to give. This is a Community event and needs Community involvement. If it is impossible to give some time on Saturday, please be with us on Sunday. To everyone, the Recreation Committee wishes a Merry Christmas and a safe, blessed Holiday Season," township recreation officials stated.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By John Brimble

Chilled melon soup is just good ripe melon pureed in a processor or blender. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper, and a touch of nutmeg to taste. If it's too thick, thin with chicken stock.

Frozen foods will fry better — and absorb less oil — if you DON'T thaw before cooking.

Precook meats in your microwave oven and finish off over the barbecue. They'll be ready faster — and they'll be more tender, too.

'Third generation'--Nissan 300ZX has an all new look

A "third generation" milestone in the 15-year history of America's No. 1 selling sports car has been reached with the introduction of the all-new 1984 Nissan 300zx.

The latest model of a vehicle originally created in Japan for the United States market is the replacement for the Datsun 280zx and is now on sale at O'Hara Datsun in Livonia.

The Nissan 300zx is powered by a new 3-liter V-6 engine and has been completely restyled "without sacrificing the flavor first introduced with the Datsun 240z in 1970," according to C.P. (Chuck) King, senior vice president, sales of Nissan U.S.A.

The 1984 Nissan 300zx represents the first complete redesign since the 1979 Datsun 280zx was unveiled. Nissan's z series, however, has counted many important milestones. The model year history reads:

1970-73 — 240z (introduced November, 1969)

1974 — 260z (engine displacement increased and 2+2 model added)

1975-78 — 280z (larger engine, plus fuel injection)

1979-80 — 280zx (T-Top in '79; Turbo in '81)

The 1984 300zx is available in two bodystyles and in three basic models — the two-seat normally-aspirated and turbocharged GS (Grand Sport) coupes and 2+2 GS.

In addition to the new high-performance engine and aerodynamic design, King said the 300zx also features numerous major technical innovations. Among them are a new fuel injection system and an electronically-controlled four-speed automatic transmission. Prices for the 1984 300zx start at $15,799.

Semi-retractable halogen headlights are part of the new look that replaces the more massive, projecting hood of former models with a shorter nose, lower hood lines and steeply-raked windshield.

Five computers control the engine, transmission, audio system, air conditioning and theft deterrent system.

The V-6 engine represents another important Nissan milestone — an all-new replacement for a very successful in-line six-cylinder engine with an 18-year heritage. Relatively compact (10 inches shorter) and lightweight by comparison, it combines higher performance and significant improvement in fuel economy. The normally-aspirated V-6 develops 160 horsepower compared to 145 for the 280zx and the turbocharged version 200 vs. 180.

A revised suspension system for the 300zx has resulted in "renewed sports car handling," says King. One of the new handling features available with the Turbo model is three-way adjustable shock absorbers. The driver may select the balance of ride and handling — firm, normal or soft.

Interiors have been upgraded to include tilt steering wheel with memory, 8-way adjustable driver's seat and greatly improved air conditioning and audio systems. The standard trim level includes analog dash and fabric seats. An optional leather package includes digital dash display and a host of special features.

world of wheels

by denny campbell

Who was that Conquest Turbo I saw you with last nite, F-X H-I's Chrysler Plymouth?

Not too secretly, a gold Mitsubishi Monster turbo appeared at the dealership Thursday evening. As it's slightly ahead of intro I can't reveal the location of this bomb... 145 hp from a 2.6 liter fuel-injected four, four wheel independent suspension with four wheel disc brakes... As these will be in short supply, you'll probably want to move quickly (in the general area of Ann Arbor Road and Lilley) to check it out! Tell Paul Moran you don't know how you knew it was there!

This weekend is the group campers' meeting at Feister R.V. for those of you who would like to get involved in organized group camping; Sunday, the 27th at 4:30 p.m., meet at Feister.

And, as predicted, Pontiac has announced its 2000 Sunbird Turbo — the 150 hp F.I. motor we discussed several weeks ago — and for us sedan people, the good news is... yes!!! A four-door turbo!!! Two-doors available, of course. I plan on being in line early at Red Holman for a test drive... when you sell as many Pontiacs as Red Holman they wouldn't dare not send him the first ones... by the way, Fiero's continue to be in short supply, so be patient if you order is in!

By the way, with cold weather and Christmas both on the way, one of the best accessories we've come across is sheepskin seat cover for bucket seats. Believe it (See CONQUEST Page B-6)

Precautions needed with battery

Dead vehicle batteries are just as much a part of Michigan winters as sub-zero temperatures, snow and ice. The Michigan Department of Labor, Safety Education and Training Division reminds everyone that jumping a dead battery requires safety precautions to avoid serious injuries due to explosions. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness says nearly 21,000 persons were injured by batteries in 1979, a 30 percent increase over the previous year.

When jump-starting a vehicle the Safety Education and Training Division suggests these guidelines:

BEFORE ATTACHING

- CABLES:
- Put out all cigarettes and flames. A spark can ignite hydrogen gas from the battery.
  - Make sure vehicles don't touch. Set parking brakes and put automatic transmissions in park; manual transmissions in neutral; turn ignition off.
  - Add battery water, if needed. Replace caps, cover with damp cloth. Don't jump-start if fluid is frozen.
  - Do not Jump-start unless both batteries are the same voltage. Batteries can be either 6-volt or 12 volt. Check owner's manual.
- ATTACHING THE CABLES (done in order listed)
1. Clamp one jumper cable to

- positive (+) pole of dead battery. Then clamp cable's other end to positive (+) pole of good battery.
  2. At good battery, clamp second cable to negative (-) pole. Then clamp cable's other end to dead vehicle's engine block on side away from battery.
  3. Start vehicle with good battery — then start the disabled vehicle.
  4. Remove cable from engine block and other vehicle's negative pole. Then remove cable from positive poles.
- When jump-starting vehicles avoid standing between vehicles and be sure to stay a safe distance from traffic.

or not they even help cool in the summer. And most importantly, warm with a big W, in the winter. The only place I've found them locally is at Erhard BMW on Telegraph in Southfield. If you know another place, let us know.

Open note to J.D. Lagrow in Canton — Chrysler's new T-115 vans can carry up to seven people and still has room for a crib.

Congratulations!

Maybe part of the fascination of "Magnum P.I.'s" 308 Ferrari is because under seven hundred a year are sold ... a small run of American cars is 10,000! Some difference in supply and demand, right? So now you can understand what the import restrictions on Japanese cars has done.

Soon, only the economically privileged will enjoy the Japanese automobile — those long lasting, fuel-saving vehicles that lower transportation costs ... and that should benefit the economically underprivileged!!! Wealth doesn't seem to me to be the point of the controversy, but it is the result of the intended legislation.

Similarly, if you think Harley-Davidson will introduce agile, hi-performance 750 sport bikes you should also consider head supporters! Legislation doesn't help, it hinders!

I neglected to mention in last week's column that Greg Cortis indicated that we could detail the construction of his new Cobra ... we'll be anxious to do just that, so look for our mini-series in the spring!

May your Thanksgiving be a worthy one; and may you be worthy of it!

Watch Wheel World on CVC and we'll see you next week!

Chevrolet plugs into service computer

Chevrolet customers nationwide soon will begin reaping the benefits of a new, computer-assisted service program, Chevrolet Motor Division has announced.

"Our new Technical Assistance Network will help our dealers service customers' vehicles more quickly — by reducing the time needed for diagnosis — and more correctly — by providing the latest available technical information," explained Robert E. Cook, Chevrolet general sales manager.

"For Chevrolet and its dealers, top-quality service is a key factor in maintaining satisfied owners. This new system is an indication of our continuing commitment to customer satisfaction," Cook said.

Using the Chevrolet Technical Assistance Network, dealership service personnel can place a toll-free telephone call to one of 16 technical consultants in Chevrolet Central Office.

Using the service technician's description of the problem, the consultant can access a computer, which will provide the probable cause and appropriate repair for the problem.

Technical information stored in the computer originates from a number of sources, including Chevrolet Engineering and Reliability, manufacturing and assembly plants fleet service records, field engineers, Chevrolet sales and service office nationwide, General Motors allied divisions and GM Proving Ground operations.

All Chevrolet dealerships are expected to be able to access the Technical Assistance Network by the end of the year. The network will be operated at Chevrolet Central Office until 8 p.m. to provide service to dealerships in the western time zones.

Lewis Kirk

Who has the best barbequed ribs in the metropolitan Detroit area? Ask Lewis Kirk, and he'll proudly tell you it's his.

Kirk, the owner of Kirk's Barbeque restaurants in Detroit and Inkster, admits: "I try out most of the sauces in the area, and I think I have the best."

His mastery of barbequing started in high school, when he began cooking ribs. That love — "If I have a choice, I'll choose ribs; I've loved ribs all my life" — has led to 22 years in the restaurant business.

"At one time we were cooking 4,000 pounds of ribs a week," Kirk explained. "That's equal to about 400 hogs."

Married and the father of five, Kirk leaves the cooking at home to the rest of the family, except on holidays and when summer arrives. The family also shares in the business. They all work in the two restaurants, some between college classes.

Kirk has a special recipe for his barbeque sauce, and this one he has supplied makes enough for approximately five slabs of ribs. Good sauce, though, requires a special touch with the ribs. He recommends that all the fat be trimmed from the meat, and that they be cooked with the sauce at a fast pace.

"Don't slow cook them at all."

Kirk's Barbeque Sauce

3 cups tomato paste

1 cup barbeque spices

6 tablespoons brown sugar

3 tablespoons garlic salt

3 tablespoons onion salt

1 cup cider vinegar

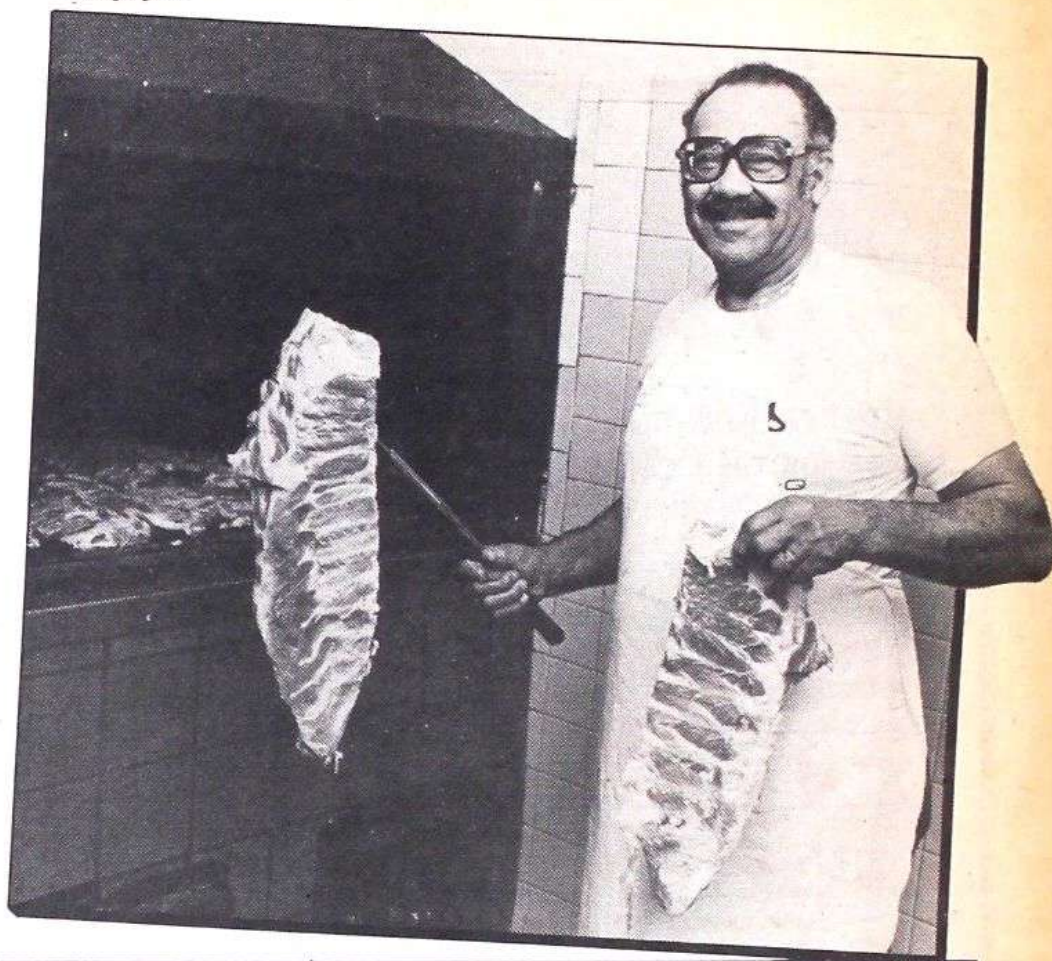

2 tablespoons ReaLemon juice

2 tablespoons hot sauce

1 Mix all the ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Once the mixture has boiled it's ready to use.

secret chefs and elicited from them the secrets of their kitchen talents. These recipes, according to the cooks, are sure-fire man pleasers and nearly infallible.

Frank Pascarella

Sometimes, mother really does know best... in the case of Belleville City Manager Frank Pascarella, it seems to be true.

Pascarella learned to cook, as did the rest of his family, from his "typically Italian" mother, who instructed her brood by example in the preparation and serving of good food.

Pascarella does some of the cooking at home and his wife, Joyce, and son Matthew, 19 months, are among his biggest culinary fans. "Yes, my wife appreciates my cooking, but Matthew will eat the plate," Pascarella noted with a smile.

In addition to his Italian specialties, Pascarella confesses to being a great barbequer, and both he and his wife love to entertain. They both attempt, he said, to provide the right kind of atmosphere for the serving of a meal to guests and Pascarella noted that the atmosphere includes the table setting, conversation, utensils and, of course, a good wine.

To prove his skill in the kitchen, he offered his recipe for his mother's famous lasagne.

Mama's Lasagne

Ingredients:

3 lbs. ground beef

1 cup minced white onion

olive oil

2 small cans Contadina Tomato Paste

2 Tablespoons fresh or dried oregano

1 package lasagne noodles, prepared as instructed on package

2 cups (or more) ricotta cheese

2 cups mozzarella cheese

Pepperoni to taste

Parmesan cheese

Brown the ground beef in a skillet, draining off all fats and oil. Set aside.

Saute the minced onion in a small amount of olive oil over medium heat until tender, then add the meat and two cans of tomato paste. To this add 1 tablespoon oregano and just enough water to provide a good, heavy consistency. Cook and mix well. Remove from heat and set aside, adding another tablespoon of oregano as the flavor of this spice cooks away.

In the bottom of a 9 x 13 pan, spread a small amount of the prepared meat sauce. Then add one even layer of the prepared noodles and cover with more sauce. Top this with about 1 cup of crumbled ricotta cheese, and 1 cup of grated mozzarella cheese. Then spread with thinly sliced pepperoni or spicy Italian sausage to taste.

Cover this with another layer of noodles and continue layering the ingredients until the pan is full. Sprinkle the top with parmesan cheese and bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 minutes.

Lothar Konietzko

Who's the best cook at Associated Newspapers? Hands down it has to be Chief Photographer Lothar Konietzko. A native of East Prussia, the Wayne resident got his training as a boy.

"We were all boys at home, and we had to help mother," he explained. "My father was a forester, so we lived off our own harvest. My mother had to create all her meals herself. She raised her own herbs and spices; we raised our own pigs, chickens and cows, made our own sausage, smoked our own hams and fish."

When his mother was busy, Konietzko or one of his two brothers was there to help, like holding the bowl, while she mixed a cake batter. Of course, there were rewards like licking the bowl and wooden spoon when the mixing was done, or slipping a thumb into the batter to sneak a taste.

"We learned by seeing what she put in and how she put it together," Konietzko added.

His many years in his mother's kitchen paid off, when he became a forest ranger. A bachelor, he had to do his own cooking.

Having come from a forester family, it seems only natural his specialty would be venison. In fact, he readily admits, friends who have tasted his venison roast consider them the "best." Even his 15-year-old son, Lothar, is a fan and asked for a venison roast for his birthday dinner Sunday.

Konietzko, 52, has found his skills learned in childhood have come in handy as a bachelor, but he admits he still isn't fond of washing the dishes.

"We might have gotten to help mother in the kitchen, but we also had to wash the dishes and scrub the floors."

His recipe is for Pfefferkuchen calls for one special item rose water, which he says, can be purchased at Northside Pharmacy in Wayne.

Pfefferkuchen

Batter:

- 500 g flour (17.6 oz.)
- 300 g honey (10.6 oz.)
- 150 g sugar (5.3 oz.)
- 100 g butter (3.6 oz.) or margarine
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon (ground)
- ½ teaspoon mace (east Indian)
- ½ teaspoon cloves (ground)
- ¼ teaspoon cardamom
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- 1 rum extract
- ½-1 cup of black coffee (½ cup and more if needed)
- 113 g candied citron, orange or lemon peel (4 oz.)
- 1 egg (or two)
- ½ teaspoon double acting baking powder
- 1 cup shelled almonds or walnut halves
- 100 g or 150 g confectionery sugar soaked in rose water or rum.

Warm honey, mix in sugar and butter. Add coffee and mix well. Let everything cool.

Sift flour and add baking powder with spices into a large bowl. Deepen the center of the flour and add the egg, honey and sugar mixture. Slowly stirring with wooden spoon in the center of the bowl, always mixing in some of the flour with it until batter is smooth. If batter is too thick, add some more black coffee.

Add citron (chopped) into batter. Spread batter about ½ inch thick onto cookie sheet 12 x 8. Don't forget to coat cookie sheet with spray or other fat. Preheat oven to 400 degrees and bake about 12 to 15 minutes until Pfeffer-kuchen is firm to touch.

After you take cake out of the oven, while it is still warm, add the icing of confectioner's sugar and rose water. If you cannot get rose water, use rum or lemon with powdered sugar. Decorate the Pfefferkuchen with almonds or walnut halves and later cut the cake in 2-inch squares, keeping the almond or walnut in the center of the cookie. Keeps from 6 to 10 months stored in tins.

Bob Fields

Bob Fields got interested in cooking through his interest in eating. A three-year member of the Westland Fire Department, he started rattling pots and pans, while on the Saginaw Fire Department.

"The main station had 13 people to cook for, and a couple of us would give the regular cooks a break," the 30-year-old bachelor explained. "I wanted to learn something and thought it would be kind of fun to do."

There are two cooks on Field's shift at Westland's Central Fire Station, and most meals served have to be both practical and cheap.

"Lately, we've been doing a lot of different things with chicken, serving a lot of salads just to try to cut down on the calories," he said.

While Fields does the cooking at the station, home is another story. "I don't do that much at home, since I'm cooking just for me."

His recipe for a 20-egg omelette feeds six, is easy to make and has a feature important to fire department cooking — it can be interrupted for an emergency.

Twenty Egg Omelette

- 20 eggs, scrambled with a small amount of milk
- 2 lbs. tube sausage (mild or hot)
- 3 green peppers, seeded and chopped
- 1 large Spanish onion, chopped
- 12 ozs. fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 red bell papper (in season), chopped

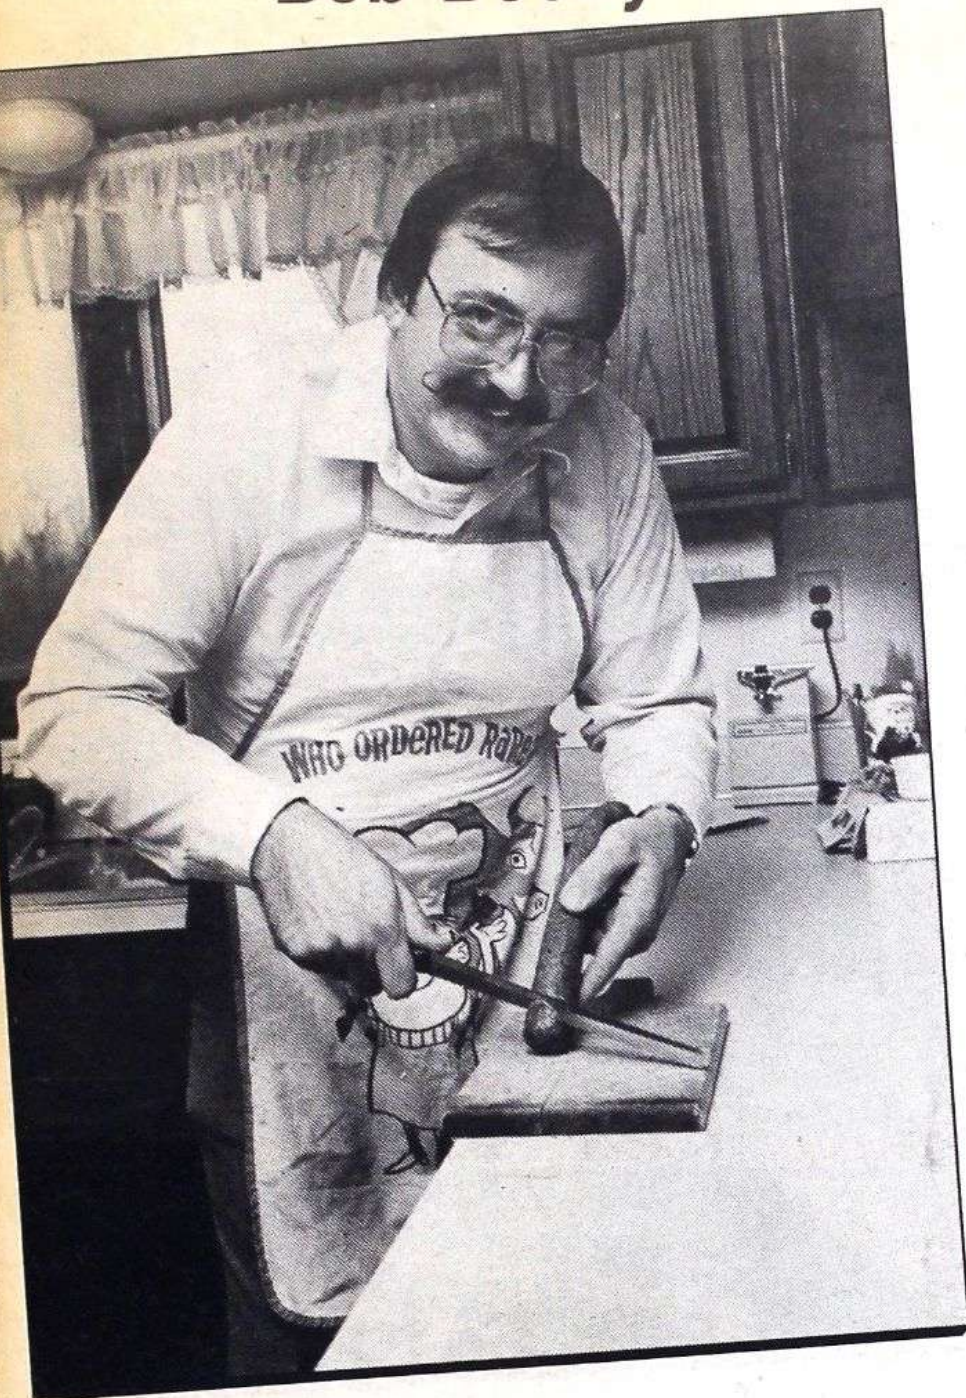

Mix eggs with milk and set aside. In a large skillet cook sausage on high heat until done. Drain off grease. Reduce to medium heat and add peppers, onions and mushrooms. (two hot finger peppers, chopped, can also be added for taste.) Cook until tender. Add eggs to mix and stir to blend. Cook, stirring occasionally, until mixture is firm. Top with 16 slices of American cheese. Cover skillet and cook until cheese melts.

Fields serves his omelette in pie-shaped wedges with either toast, hash browns or biscuits.

"I just put it on the table and let them pig out," he said.

Bob Beeny

Bob Beeny...Sicilian?

"Sure," says Beeny, a Wayne city councilman, "my Mom's name was Valenti."

Beeny admits he loves to eat, "everyone knows that." He also enjoys it and likes to cook...not bake, but cook...sometimes creating his own recipes, other times cooking from scratch.

His interest in cooking started at age 12. His mother would make a large batch of pizza dough, divided among the members of the family who would create their own pizzas.

He expanded on his skills when he worked a rotating shift at the power plant and his wife worked. He did much of the cooking. A financial planner, he concedes that his wife and two daughters love his cooking and that "if you eat at my house you have to love oregano and garlic. I put it on everything."

At 37 Beeny still makes his own pizza, although he doesn't make the dough from scratch like his mother used to.

"I cheat a lot," he said. "Mom made her dough from scratch, I use frozen loaves of bread. Then you don't spend the whole day in the kitchen."

Beeny's recipe for Scilian pizza is a meal in itself, that can be served with wine, beer, pop or whatever. He make it in a large cookie sheet and cuts the pieces into 4-inch squares.

Beeny's Siciian Pizza

2 loaves frozen bread dough

2 cans tomato paste, seasoned with garlic and oregano to taste

1 lb. mozzarella cheese

½ lb. pepperoni, sliced on an angle

Defrost the two loaves of bread. Coat with olive oil and let rise, covered, for four or five hours. Place both loaves of bread on cookie sheet and spread to cover sheet. Top with tomato paste and pepperoni. Add cheese. Bake in a 425-degree oven in the middle rack for 10 minutes or until bottom is browned. Raise back to high position and cook 10 minutes longer or until cheese "breathes." Remove from oven and allow to cool before cutting.

John Flodin

"If I'm a good cook, it's only because I enjoy eating so much," Canton Township Clerk John Flodin says of his culinary efforts.

"Ours were farm families," he says, "good at making something delicious out of almost nothing."

"My wife and I can foods together each year," Flodin adds, "although I'm not sure she approves of my puttering in the kitchen — I'm afraid I'm not too good about cleaning up the mess I make."

Below, the clerk's favorite (and easy to clean up after) recipe for sausage rolls.

Sausage Rolls

1 pound Bob Evans pork sausage

4 oz. grated sharp cheddar cheese

1½ cup Bisquick

Mix all ingredients. Roll into bite-sized balls. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Jerry Cox

Canton Township Police Chief Jerry Cox is as comfortable in the kitchen as he is in the squad car. Cox, certified chef, received his culinary education in the Army, where he prepared meals to serve 1,500.

"It's a talent that still comes in handy," the chief explains. "Because of the odd hours involved in police work, you miss meals sometimes and need to know how to cook for yourself."

Southern Style Cornbread

Blend the following dry ingredients in a two-quart mixing bowl:

2 cups white corn meal
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons baking soda

Add:

Approximately 2 cups buttermilk
2 whole eggs
1 Tablespoon bacon grease

Mix until you have a consistency similar to cake batter. Pour the mix into a well-greased 9" x 12" cake pan. Bake at 450 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 16 servings.

Larry Pagliara

And one of the newest faces in an area kitchen is that of Larry Pagliara, or "Chef Larry" as he is better known.

While new to the neighborhood, Larry has been cooking since the tender age of 7. He was born in England, and spent his childhood years in Italy and the unique range of dishes in the new Chuck Muer Mama and Pasta's restaurant can be attributed to Larry's wide ranging cooking background and experience.

Larry left Italy in 1946 and returned to England where he worked with some of the finest chefs in Europe and served a four-year apprenticeship at the noted Grand and Royal Victoria Hotels in Sheffield.

Larry is credited with originating many of the dishes served in the Muer restaurants where he is corporate executive chef . . . although he modestly claims that no one can truly invent a recipe.

"You can modify, you can change, but if a chef in his career truly invents even one recipe it is a real accomplishment," he said.

Nonetheless, the variations and added touches of flavor at the new Wayne restaurant bear the distinct trademark of Chef Larry — who agreed to share his special recipe for fresh baked schrod with us.

Boston Baked Schrod

Ingredients:

1. Fresh Boston Schrod fillets — approximately 6 oz. each fillet.
2. ¼ cup Topping Mixture (see below)

Topping Mixture

1. ½ pound seasoned bread crumbs
  2. 2 teaspoons fresh parsley, washed, dried and chopped very fine
  3. 2 teaspoons fresh grated lemon rind
  4. 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Mix all ingredients together well.

Preparing and Cooking

1. Season the fish fillets with salt (to taste)
2. Brush the flesh side of the fish with olive oil
3. Place on baking sheet skin side down
4. Place ¼ cup of topping mixture evenly over the top of the fish
5. Drizzle a little oil over top of the crumbs
6. Bake in a preheated 450° oven for approximately 8 minutes or until done.
